dogma 95 the avant garde filmmaking movement founded by the danish director lars von trier and three of his fellow directors was launched in 1995 at an elite cinema conference in paris when von trier was called upon to speak about the future of film but instead showered the audience with pamphlets announcing the new movement and its manifesto a refreshingly original critical commentary on the director and his practice playing the waves is a paramount addition to one of new media s most provocative genres games and gaming playing the waves cleverly puns on the title of one of von trier s most famous features and argues that dogma 95 like much of the director s low budget realist productions is a game that takes cinema beyond the traditional confines of film aesthetics and dramatic rules simons articulates the ways in which von trier redefines the practice of filmmaking as a rule bound activity and stipulates the forms and structures of games von trier brings to bear on his films as well as the sobering lessons he draws from economic and evolutionary game theory much like the director's films this fascinating volume takes the traditional point of view of film theory and film aesthetics to the next level and demonstrates we have much to learn from the perspective of game studies and game theory the measurement of willingness to pay for electricity relies critically on a reliable estimate of the demand for electricity function empirical work tends to assume that the demand for electricity has no satiation point many electricity demand models assume a constant price elasticity which implies infinite demand at low prices this report proposes a plausible functional form for the demand of electricity the proposed functional form is consistent with two properties of electricity demand functions for households firms namely the negative relationships between price quantity the finiteness of demand at zero price the report also demonstrates that this functional form of the demand function leads to easily estimable economic benefits of electricity provides evidence of a problem with the influential testing and assessment of solow's 1956 growth model proposed by mankiw et al 1992 and a series of papers evaluating the latter first the assumption of a common rate of technical progress maintained by mankiw et al 1992 is relaxed solow's model is extended to include the different levels and rates of technical progress of each country this increases the explanatory power of the cross country variation in income capital of the oecd countries to over 80 the estimates of the parameters are statistically significant and take the expected values and signs second the estimates merely reflect a statistical artifact this has serious implications for the possibility of actually testing solow's growth model illus hollywood has a long tradition of bringing in emigre directors from around the world dating back to the silent era today as the film industry is ever more global the people who make blockbuster movies seemingly reflect this tradition hailing from many countries across the world but that fact hides a fundamental difference one that melis behlil examines in hollywood is everywhere today's hollywood studios are themselves transnational with ownership structures and financial arrangements that stretch far beyond the borders of the united states seen in that context today's international directors are less analogous to the emigre talent of the past than to ordinary transnational employees of other major global corporations
